Munich, March 2.

BY Letters from General Brown we have Advice, that he had detached all his Cavalry into Lombardy, and ten Battalions of Foot towards Genoa; and that the King of Sardinia had agreed to furniſh a conſiderable Number of Cannon and Mortars to be employed againſt that Town.

Munich, March 9. Letters from Provence tell us, that the French Generals praiſe the Order of General Brown's Retreat. That Don Philip, the Duke of Modena, and the Marquis de Las Minas, will paſs the reſt of the Winter at Montpeiller. That 18 Swiſs Battalions, who are ſo reduced as not to amount to 3000 Men, four other Battalions called the Little Wallons, with two Iriſh, all of them in a very weak Condition, are ordered into Savoy, and the greateſt Part of the Spaniſh Cavalry into Languedoc. Theſe Letters add, that the French have ſent a conſiderable Number of Officers and Engineers to Genoa, with 1,500,000 Livres, intended for the Support of 4000 Foot, which they deſign, if poſſible, to throw into that Town, where the Genoeſe pretend to have at preſent 4000 regular Troops, compoſed of Corſicans and Auſtrian Deſerters. On the other Hand, the laſt Letters from Italy ſay, that upon the Separation of the French and Spaniſh Troops, General Brown has reſolved to march all his Infantry towards Genoa, except ten Battalions, who are to guard different Poſts near the Var, the Auſtrian Horſe being already march'd to Lombardy. That Count Schulemberg had not yet received the Artillery he expected for the Attack of Genoa, but that a Body of Auſtrians had fallen upon the Genoeſe Peaſants near Campo Morone, and killed a great Number of them, without Diſtinction of Age or Sex, their Officers not having been able to reſtrain the Fury and Reſentment of the Soldiery.

Copenhagen, March 4. The annual Ceremony of opening the High Court of Juſtice having been performed on the 2d Inſtant, the King of Denmark, as uſual, ſat perſonally in Judgment upon the Cauſes which were brought that Day before the Court.

Hague, March 14, N. S. We learn from the Ports of France, that the Martinico Fleet has been diſperſed by a Storm; fifty Sail of Merchant-men were wanting when the laſt Letters came away; the Convoy and four India-men were arrived. This Fleet came away from Martinico the 8th of January, without waiting for the St. Domingo Fleet; from whence they had Advice, that the Fleet bound from Europe to Cape François had been chaſed by ſome Engliſh Men of War, and that it was feared that fifteen Sail of Merchant-men, which had not been heard of, were taken. They write from Paris, that the Corps now aſſembling near Sedan, is to conſiſt of 25000 Men, to be commanded by Count de Clermont, Prince of the Blood: This Corps, it is ſaid, is to be employed in a Siege, whilſt M. de Saxe, under the French King, commands the Army of Obſervation. The Grand Prior of France has ordered eight Gallies to Antibes, from thence to eſcort ſome Succours that the Court of France is ſending ing to Genoa. M. de Saxe was to leave Paris this Day or To-morrow. Advices from Bruſſels ſay, that all the Militia raiſed in the new conquered Towns of the Low-Countries is ſent into Provence. In the laſt Week, eighteen Battalions of Militia paſſed through Bruſſels in their Way to Mechlin, Antwerp, and Louvain; the two Battalions left at Bruſſels are employed to mend the Roads towards Philippeville. Quarters are marked out at Namur for 25000 Men that are expected there ſoon, and the Magiſtrates of Bruſſels have Orders to provide Quarters for a conſiderable Body of Horſe and Foot expected to be there this Week. As the Dyke of Linſchoten did not give Way, and the Gap in the Dyke near Wyck is ſtopped up, and the Water is, by the South-Eaſt Winds, conſiderably fallen, we are in no Fear of any farther Progreſs of the Inundation, which threaten'd moſt Parts of the Diſtricts of Rhynland, and the Neighbourhood of Amſterdam. The Damage done by this Inundation is not ſo conſiderable as was imagined at firſt.

Hague, March 17, N. S. The States have reſolved to recall M. Van Hoey from Paris. His Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland has begun to put the Army in Motion, by giving Orders to the Dutch Troops that are in the Province of Frizeland and Groninguen, to draw nearer to the main Body of the Army. By Letters from Paris of the 13th Inſtant we learn, that the Embarkation of the Succours deſigned for Genoa was to have begun on the 2d, and that it was reported that they had ſailed with a favourable Wind. Affairs at Genoa continued pretty much as they were, but the Auſtrians ſeemed to be making Diſpoſitions for a conſiderable Effort. The Iſlands of St. Marguerite, which were ſaid to have been taken, had not been attacked in Form. M. de Chevret met with Obſtructions which occaſioned the poſtponing the Attack thereof to another Time. Two Engliſh Men of War which cruized before thoſe Iſlands, prevented the Barks from landing the Troops.
